

Andrew Ettenhofer

Consultant Advocate

As a Consultant Advocate, Andrew supports the consultants in building their referral networks while providing essential business development and product support. He is also responsible for coordinating and facilitating consultant onboarding and training.

Before starting his coaching practice in 2015, Andrew led various business development, sales, and marketing teams across various industries. In 2023, he completed the Professional Coach Training Program through Coach U, marking the beginning of his credentialing process with the International Coaching Federation (ICF). In addition to providing one-to-one coaching for business owners and sales leaders, he teaches, runs workshops, and facilitates leadership groups.

A Colorado native, Andrew currently lives near Boulder with his wife and two rescue dogs. After a 21-year detour in Chicago following college, where he first launched his career in sales, he's happy to be back near the Rocky Mountains, enjoying camping and hiking. His other interests include music, culinary arts, and hosting events.
