

Stephen Griner

President and Chief Operating Officer

Stephen Griner has spent his entire career in the financial services industry working with owners of privately held companies in the areas of exit planning and investment management. He has consulted with companies from startup to sale, from a variety of industries. His diverse experience includes focusing on business financial management, operations, leadership development, and investment policy. Today, as President and Chief Operating Officer of NAVIX, Stephen is responsible for overseeing all areas of the company's operations.

In 2010, Stephen earned the Chartered Financial Analyst designation; the most respected and recognized investment designation in the world. He is a member of the CFA Institute and the Atlanta Society of Financial and Investment Professionals. Stephen is a cum laude graduate of University of Georgia's Terry College of Business, with a Bachelor of Business Administration in Finance. Since 2008, has been a member of Vistage, an invitation-only executive development and peer advisory organization.

Stephen is originally from Athens, Georgia, as is his wife Angela. They now reside in Brookhaven, Georgia and are raising twin boys.
